Law to Curb Strikes

Democracy for Labor Unions

Automobile Dealers Picketed

In San Diego we are having a number of labor disputes going on. Before the declaration of war with Japan our lumber industry was tied up completely on a dispute concerning wages and many defense jobs were held up in the building industry.

There is still picketing going on in the automotive industry where new car dealers who have elaborate establishments for car repairing refuse to sign a contract for a closed shop under which their employees who have worked with them for years, would be deprived of their jobs unless they joined the union, accepted labor boss dictation, submitted to be fined for infractions and in fact bought their jobs from the union and held them at the pleasure of the union bosses and racketeers.

I deplore the fact that the lumber industry had to suffer loss and merely because war was declared picketing was stopped and work resumed. The nature of a crime is not changed by a declaration of congress. That which is wrong in itself does not depend upon counting of votes to be wrong or right. It works in nature unerringly and produces its natural effects. If it is wrong to stop war products it is equally wrong to stop peace products. The rights involved are exactly the same.

The congress of the U. S. has the greatest opportunity now to eliminate the racket feature out of labor organizations. The congress is amiss in its duty to the nation and to the men and women who pay dues to labor organizations if it does not make it mandatory that labor unions be incorporated and render a financial accounting to their membership and file it with the secretary of labor, at least once a year. As soon as the labor bosses must account for their actions and the handling of funds to their own membership, we will have introduced democracy into labor organizations. If this war is for democracy and the congress has pledged the resources of the whole nation to its victorious pursuit, then lets give democracy to the men and women who do the hard work in this world wide struggle.

TEXAS LAW UPHELD IN VIOLENCE CASES DURING STRIKE

AUSTIN, Tex.,—The court of criminal appeals has upheld constitutionality of a state law making it a felony to use force or violence or threat of force or violence in preventing a person from working at a lawful occupation.

The law was passed at the last regular session of the legislature as an antidote for violence in labor disputes.

The court acted in the cases of Jack Frye and Ted Sanford, both from Harris county. Neither had been tried but sought freedom on writs of habeas corpus, contending the law was invalid.

The court, in an opinion by Judge C. G. Krueger, overrruled all exceptions of the relators who were ordered placed in custody of the Harris county sheriff.

Miss Jeannete Rankin

LONE VOTE CAST AGAINST WAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8,— Only one house member, Miss Jeannete Rankin (R-Mont), voted against a declaration of war with Japan today as compared with 50 representatives who voted against war with Germany in 1917. Hisses greeted her vote today.

Miss Rankin and Rep. Knutson (R-Minn) are the only members of the present house who voted against the German declaration, and Knutson today voted for war against Japan.

When Jesus stood before Pilate, it is said that Pilate asked the Master what to do. It is not generally known that Pilate was a pupil of Jesus, just as few realize that many Jews were his followers, even though Jesus personally was not a Jew but an Aramean, what we would call today an Armenian. You must get the picture: Pilate was his pupil and naturally loved him and admired him. And Pilate had the power to set him free and give him the protection necessary against the Jews.

But it is said Jesus told his pupil: "You MUST follow the rules of your government, for I did not come to break the law but to fulfill it".

With a bleeding heart, then, Pilate used every legal measure available to save the Master, had him even flogged, rather than kill him, still, he finally had to wash his hands off the whole thing obeying the Master's instructions.

I mention this, that there be no misunderstanding. It is not a shifting of position but a fulfillment of the office of representative government, with emphasis on representative.

Had I been in congress on the fateful day, I too, would have followed the rule of this wordly government and voted that a state of war formally exists as of this date. One cannot do otherwise in the face of factual hostilities.

WE RESPECT COURAGE

But not so Jeannete Rankin. She feels that war is unnecessary and a crime, and she is right, even though her feeling has not grown sufficiently and developed to the point where it would yield practical results. The Bryan-Kellog pact which outlawed war, intended to be a practical measure, but was not as I pointed out at the time of its signing.

Miss Rankin goes by her feelings and I glory in her spunk. While it seems wasted in this cruel world, just the same we admire the woman who dares hold to what is true in her heart. In her heart she knows that wars are unnecessary and so they are, but to make them unnecessary a whole lot of work has to be done first, but while our house is being set afire we might as well formally acknowledge the fact and take the defensive measures necessary.

Still, there is much merit to Rankin's attitude if she only followed it up to its logical realization. Being the one who set her heart and faith in peace, she should elect herself a committee of one and gather around herself those who look forward towards the conclusion of hostilities. Wars are won and lost as much at the peace table as they are on the field of battle.

She should study the factors that threw us into war and prepare the path for ending the hostilities. Wars are won by strategy of various natures not by brute force alone. As an American Rankin does not propose to end the war in such a way that it would curtail our rights in the international relations of peoples. It takes marvelous brain work of a practical nature to propose the formula which henceforth would represent the equity of those involved so that it could be incorporated into a peace treaty of duration.

U. S. Congress Declares War on Japan

When the first radio bulletins were given that Japanese airplanes were attacking our Pacific islands, we were wrapping and sorting THE BROOM for the mail. I felt that one Orson Wells hysteria about invasion from Mars had been enough, why are they starting another?

But it was no Orson Wells episode even though it was as strange. The next day the President went before the congress, demanding a declaration of war. It all was businesslike enough, a grim business, most solemn and vehement. But when the President finished, the congressmen started to shout and howl.

My God, my God! — What were they shouting for? Would those men there in the assembled congress have shouted as if they were at a picnic or a foot ball game, had they been the ones who would be laying the next moment dead and mangled upon the battle fields or at the bottom of the sea?

Why the shouting? Are they savages? Don't they know what war means? Have they not been there before? The sacrifice and sacrifice, the suffering for evermore, the loss of the youth of the country and the cripples forever, to say nothing of the destruction of property and lost labor.

Could these men, in that grim moment, not at least have respectfully stood at the bier of those boys who lost their lives in the Pacific the day previous?! Could they not have looked into the future and shed tears with the mothers and fathers whose boys are yet to be sacrificed in the maws of Moloch and Mars? When one declares war, at least he ought to know what it means to those who make the sacrifice in lives and wealth, in anguish and heartbreaks.

But those men — oh, those men, those shouting men, - - - my God, my God!

Hitler Declares War on Us

(An Editorial)

When I applied for American citizenship I had to fill out a questionair reading somewhat like this:

Are you willing to take up arms in defense of the U. S. A. ?

My answer was: In defense, YES.

With the declaration war against the U. S. A. by Japan, Germany and Italy, I am now called upon, with all the others who like myself have made their declaration and taken their oath of allegiance, to take my stand in defense of our adopted country.

I have never reneged on a solemn promise in my life.

While we were yet at peace, legally, and were tugging for war or peace, I stood out for peace and shall do so again at the first chance of concluding a just and honorable peace; but while we are facing an aggressive enemy, my place is in the ranks of the defenders.

Some might suppose that I am a turn-coat who stands for peace, or for war, as the mob goes. Those who have seen me face the mob and take it on the chin when principle was at stake know that the charge is not true.

I took an oath with full knowledge of the price I would be called on to pay in times of stress and I am not one to dodge when the time comes to deliver.

I wish to ask those whom I have fought in the past and might again face opposite me in the future, on minor and secondary issues, to forget our differences and conscious of the common danger join with full confidence in their hearts that we are standing shoulder to shoulder in the common cause.

JOINT RESOLUTION DECLARES 'WAR THRUST UPON U. S.'

Declaring that a state of war exists between the imperial government of Japan and the government and the people of the United States, and making provisions to prosecute the same.

Whereas, the imperial government of Japan has committed repeated acts of war against the government and the people of the United States of America; therefore, be it

Resolved by the senate and the house of representatives of the United States in congress assembled that the state of war between the United States and the imperial government of Japan which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared; and that the president be and he is hereby authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the government to carry on war against the imperial government of Japan; and, to bring the conflict to a successful termination, all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the congress of the United States.

All savages are cruel, this cruelty proceeds from their food. They go to war as they go to the chase, and treat men as they do bears.

Small Chance of Being Bombed

A number of my subscribers have already left the coastal area for places inland, from fear of being bombed, because of the defense industries on the waterfront. One should remember that the chances of being bombed are smaller than the chances of being in an automobile accident.

British statistics reveal that the Hitler bombardments actually reduced the number of yearly casualties in England in this fashion: Before the Nazis started raining bombs on England the number of deaths from automobile accidents were far above the number of deaths resultant from bombing. Hitler's war on the Isles resulted in stopping auto travel and the net result was an increased saving in lives, statistically speaking.

Thus we in San Diego need have no more fear of being killed or injured by bombs than we have today concerning automobiles, even less. The only thing is that bombing is more spectacular, but whether you get hit by a bomb or a car, you are just as dead in either case; so why worry?

Keeping the rules in auto travel is the only safe way to travel, the same applies to bombings, obey the military instructions and get used to it, even though you may get mad that they are not telling us the truth about these war game blackouts. But we must get trained to obey and prevent unnecessary deaths and injuries, while reminding the military authorities that crying wolf, wolf, when there is none might and will result in demoralizing the people into negligence when the wolf really should come.

WHY NOT ?

Application of Creative Economics

In this column henceforth we shall present the coming American economic system which will redeem this nation, and thence the world, from the chaos following this carnage and debacle in whose midst we find ourselves.

Our revelations are prophetic but are authenticated by science and religion and so we present them for what they are worth and stake our reputation on our prophecy that they are the methods which actually will be employed to redeem the shaken financial status of individuals, corporations, nations and the world as a whole.

These revelations did not originate with this writer. We are merely recording them from the mouth of the man who is too shy to state them himself. He has the knowledge, we have the means of presenting it to the world. We would not do so, except that we fully agree with him, because it is the very philosophy which the SUN-worshippers have advocated since time immemorial; in fact it is the very method which the Creator Himself is applying daily in the conduct of Universal Economics. On this basis you and I were created and outfitted with the energies of life which we translate into health or sickness, wealth or poverty, peace or war, according to the choice we make.

In fact, I shall not be telling you anything new. You have always had it with you, only you failed to note its significance, now we shall point to it and let you see for yourself that the solution was always right in front of your nose, so obvious you never thought to apply it.

Watch for the first article next week.

God's Real Name Spells L-O-V-E

We are living in strenous times. Your boys, my boys, might soon be dead, maimed or in peril of their lives, as this war continues. But there is something women can give them to take with them even beyond the grave.

Do you know why you looked into your mother's eyes and were happy when she smiled on you? She was telling you she loved you, she said it with her eyes. And when you saw it, whom else did you see, but God? Don't you know that God's real name spells L-O-V-E?

Declared a legal paper of general circulation for the County and City of San Diego, by Superior Court order, January 15, 1932.

Who Is Responsible ?

COURTS-MARTIAL DEMANDED IN 'NAVAL DEBACLE'

WASHINGTON,—Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich) demanded court-martial proceedings against five top army and navy commanders, including Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, for the "naval debacle" at Pearl Harbor. Dingell demanded courts-martial for the following:

Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, commander of the Hawaiian department; Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff and chief of the army air force; Maj. Gen. George H. Brett, chief of the army air corps; and Maj. Gen. Fred L. Martin, chief of the Hawaiian air force.

He further demanded that the navy court-martial Kimmel "to determine his guilt or innocence in the failure of Hawaiian defenders to beat off the surprise air attack before serious damage had been done."

'May Go Higher'

Dingell declared that if the courts-martial determine that these officers are not responsible for the U. S. showing in the first great battle of the war "We'll have to go higher in our probe".

"Hundreds of our boys have paid with their lives for the seeming deficiency of their superiors," he said. "The army and navy in Hawaii obviously were caught off guard if they were not sound asleep in the same bed."

Pointing out that the Japanese used only their air force in the attacks upon Hawaii, Dingell declared:

"Had they the courage and foresight to attack in full force with their battle fleet, it is entirely within the realm of possibility that they would have captured the stronghold while it slumbered."

'Battlewagons Tied Up'

He said it "seems incredible to me, a layman, that with a full emergency having been declared weeks ago, and preparations being made to meet any eventuality, our forces were not in evidence to meet the enemy offshore."

He said "The navy seemingly tied up its battlewagons every Saturday noon in routine manner and went to town until Monday morning."

"When the Japs arrived," he said, "there were not enough men to man the guns. The air corps seemingly was in the same position.

"The American people have a right to know, and I, as a member of congress on their behalf, demand to know who was to blame for the great catastrophe which befell our American fighting force in the stronghold of the Pacific, which jeopardized the very existence of the United States of America.

"I am assuming that the blame rests on the very top and should be placed there if justified by the facts."

YES, THE HIGHER-UPS, WHO ARE THEY?

Rep. Dingell is demanding an investigation by courts-martial of the responsibility for the deaths of our boys who by the hundreds have paid with their lives for somebody's folly. He is determined to go even "higher up" to get at the culprits. And may we suggests to him to demand an investigation as to how it came that President Roosevelt went over the heads of the negotiating representatives of the Japanese government, while negotiations were in full swing, and did the most fatal thing that started the shooting.

American foreign correspondents who are named below knew that the moment the President addressed himself to the Mikado over the heads of the negotiating parties, he threw the torch into the tinder box; why was the President not appraised of that situation? Who in the state department that did not know what such a sudden and unprecendented move on the President's part would precipitate in Japan? Who was it that advised, yea urged the President to do that very thing which in its final result would throw him the support of the whole congress for a declaration of war, which otherwise would never have been given.

There, Mr. Dingell, will you find the higher-ups responsible for the deaths of these hundreds of our boys. Our foreign correspondents could have warned the President, why did the state department not tell him plainly what the result of such unprecendented action would be upon the Japanese government?!

Paul Mallon Writes:

"Sumner Welles, the state under-secretary wanted to bet an associate 10 to 1 a few days before the Jap attack that there would be war. The vital 14th street railroad bridge (only rail connection east of the mountains between the North and South) was suddenly fitted with electric lights under its piers for protection against sabotage the day before war broke. An unusual warlike conference between the fighting service leaders, Knox and Stimson, was held with State Secy. Hull a few hours before the declaration of war came from Tokyo.

Other evidence, equally emphatic, can be found in the public utterances of Navy Secy. Knox the past few weeks that war with Japan was expected by this government."

WHO SUGGESTED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ADDRESS SIMSELF TO THE MIKADO? AND WHY?

Having been attacked, the United States of America has done the only possible thing and acknowledged that the state of war already existing is formally so declared.

Upton Close, the columnist and Walter Robb, veteran foreign correspondent, both have given an account that throws light on the goings on behind the scenes.

Just as we are wondering today why the navy was caught napping, we must ask the question, if Close and Robb knew it that addressing himself to the Emperor, over the heads of the Japanese government in power, would precipitate the war immediately, why was the President not warned of the effect of this out of the ordinary measure he took? Reading the report by Walter Robb which appeared in the Los Angeles Times of Dec. 8, the day of our formal declaration of war, it becomes clear that what took place in Japan could be compared to something like this:

Suppose President Roosevelt were to address himself to William Green to determine the disposition of Lewis' coal strike in the captive mines, what would the effect be on the CIO? Anybody with any sense in his head knows that it would bring John L. Lewis on the scene with all the might of his organization taking action to strike as fast and as throughly as he could, to prove that William Green is not representing the ENTIRE LABOR field.

And that was the exact effect the President's action had in Japan when the decision of war and peace was laid in the Mikado's hands. Who, and why, was it that induced the President of these United States to take the fatal step when the large majority of the people still hoped to avoid entrance into actual warfare?!

CLIQUE PUSHED JAPAN INTO WAR, SAYS WRITER

Roosevelt's Note to Figurehead Emperor Touched Off Conflict, Correspondent Thinks

By WALTER ROBB

Everybody guesses at the animus back of Japanese air attack at Hawaii. One more guess can do no harm, though my friend, Upton Close, has, in a way, anticipated me. The chief single source of my hunch is young Mr. Fleisher's book, "Volcanic Isle", summarizing his views as a newspaperman and editor at Tokyo. He there had the enviable advantage of being a neighbor to Ambassador Grew and must have known Grew's inner convictions about Japan and the clique now in the saddle there.

Leaders Reactionary

These men are of the most reactionary school. They have long been practically at grips with Emperor Hirohito, trying to divest him of actual state authority, reduce him to helpless isolation in the palace, and to restore an aristocratic regime tantamount to the old-time Shogunate under which for 250 years, ending around 1870, Japan was locked away from the outside world.

As long as Japan parleyed with the United States, that long and real better judgment of the Japanese was felt and the military aristocrats were defeated of their purpose.

Appeal Last Straw

President Roosevelt's direct appeal to Emperor Hirohito was the last straw these men's worried backs could bear. They could not allow it to go through. It would undo them utterly, since Emperor Hirohito's personal sympathies are well known to be against them.

They could have stopped it, given the autonomy of the Japanese navy (and army, too.) They could have stopped it by commencing to shoot. They did so.

The wealth of Japan is opposed to these men, dominantly a landed gentry—a kind of oriental "Cliveden set", such as recently ruled England almost to her ruin. But the Japanese peasantry is with them; the peasants have been having good seasons and first-rate prices for their crops under the Tories. So, overt acts of war having transpired, it will be touch and go for a while as to who must eventually win out in Tokyo.

Note Touched Trigger

Secretary Hull's unsuppressed indignation in the presence of Ambassador Nomura and Special Envoy Kurusu, on reading Tokyo's official reply to the Hull outline of a peace basis between America and Japan, is no factor in the situation. Deep down, the three men feel alike; it could have been no offense either to Nomura or to Kurusu for Hull to express himself bluntly.

The trigger-finger was Roosevelt's note to Hirohito: it is no part of Tory politics to have the head of a state more than the personification of a revered tradition, Emperor Hirohito's religious role, or an effigy on a coin.

What Did the Note Say ?

Have you seen it?

"For God and Country"

The American Way of Life

As soon as Japan had launched the attack upon Hawaii and the fact was sufficiently authenticated for me to realize that it meant war, there was only one thing for me to do: Report to the HIGHEST authority for further orders.

My highest authority is OUR FATHER in whose name I took the oath of allegiance to these United States of America. There is where my allegiance lies, through GOD, not against GOD.

As soon as I "reported", my new instructions were to tear up the front page of THE BROOM and present an outline of the WAR and PEACE policy of this paper. While the first issue had gone already into the mails, Roy, my printer, and myself worked on Monday morning to produce the extra, war edition, to be placed on the news-stands.

I want you to notice the date line, December 8, 1941. I want you to read its contents which are reproduced below that our subscribers who did not see the extra edition of last Monday, may be informed on. And then I want you to compare the contents with the PUBLISHERS' pledge of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, which was made public Dec. 11, or three days after the BROOM stated and outlined his policy and duty.

For your information, I may state that I am not formally a member of the ANPA, nor have I had a part in their deliberations. But evidently those publishers, also, went into the inner chamber of their being and consulted the same HIGH AUTHORITY for instructions, as their declaration proves the same words even were repeated which are the "password" of American Journalism in this great crisis.

Fellow Americans:

As long as such "co-incidents" take place that men devoted to the highest aims of humanity repair in their hearts to Almighty God for instructions and from the two extremes of the continent, San Diego and New York, emerge with identic instructions and declarations of policy, AMERICA WILL WIN THIS WAR and win the Peace, too. Let us trust in the power of the Almighty and do our duty, faithfully, step by step.

* * * *

This was the front page declaration of our policy in the "Extra" edition of Dec. 8, distributed to the News-stands:

We Are Americans First

By C. Leon de Aryan

"These are days that try men's souls."

Whether in peace or war, we are Americans first and our reliance is upon almighty God.

In accordance with the principles for which we live we shall continue the policy of THE BROOM to stand with the TRUTH, for the truth shall make us free. During these trying days when our people have fallen prey to the destruction incident to war, our patriotic activities will be devoted to the saving of lives and the maintenance of law and order, as well as the preservation of property and the rehabilitation of those who in the course of warfare will be the victims of its ravages.

We are appalled at the terrific sacrifices staring us in the face. We had hoped it would never befall our dear America for we know what war does and did to us in the past. Our heart goes out to all those mothers, wives and sisters who are losing their dearest ones on land and sea. We know what it means to sit glued to the radio and listen to the bulletins that report this and that ship sunk and how the heart skips a beat for fear that "he" is on that boat which might have been sunk or attacked.

And during the hysteria incident to war, we hope to exert ourselves to the utmost to prevent unnecessary cruelty to those people who though born in a foreign land are loyal Americans, but because of their ancestry might be suspected by an incensed mind, from God knows what motives, and be subject to unjust and undue persecution.

Constitution our Guide

THE BROOM has always been fearless and reckless of consequences in espousing what we believed to be the right. Now it will take even more courage and more wisdom than ever to bring home to us and hold before our eyes at all hours that even though in war, the CONSTITUTION of these U. S. of A. is the supreme law of the land which each and everyone of us has sworn to shed his last drop of blood to uphold and keep sacred.

During these trying times there is danger of much uncontrolled feeling getting the best, or worst of us. As Americans we must not allow our sacred rights to be trodden in the dust under the false claim of expediency. At war America stands for the American way and there is no American way unless there is the Constitution, operative and guiding us towards that goal which beckons to free men. There is everlasting danger that overzealous little minds consider it their privilege, nay their duty, to impose their burocratic notions upon a people fervent with patriotism, ready for sacrifices.

We shall evermore guard our precious inheritance and shout an unmistakable warning to overzealous public servants that we are watching them and know the difference between patriotism and tyranny.

Solace in God's Wisdom

"These are days that try men's souls."

In the pages of the BROOM you shall find hope, consolation and clear vision. We shall not only serve you in the things temporal but shall help you lift your heart to the Eternal Father who watches over us all. When you will be heart-broke you shall find a friend who understands your sacrifice; we will show you that life is eternal and death is but a change.

Friends, be of good cheer! Hard days are before us but with Faith in the Almighty and a friendly attitude towards one another we shall come out victorious.

Law of Duality

By Dr. O. Z. Ha'nish

The Avestan Philosophy treats of the duality of nature; "good and evil" are combined in varying percentages in everybody and in everything. Even Mazda Himself was said at first not to be exempt from contamination. From His realm came Angro-mainyus. These two great powers waged war with one another and in league with one or the other are all the manifestations of the Universe. While this dualistic idea of life permeates the entire Avestan conception of nature, the God-head, Mazda, is considered free from evil. Since Angro-mainyus has left the arch-angelic host to wage war against the Lord God, Mazda Himself marshals the hosts of purity and righteousness to combat evil, thus Mazda is freed from all taint.

Angro-mainyus, however, is supposed in his heart to have an intense desire to regain the favour of Mazda and is warring merely because his position forces him to do so, consequently Angro-mainyus has an admixture of good in his personality and is also included in the dualistic manifestation of nature. This sets Mazda into a sphere all His own.

The theological world, as well as the world of literature, is brought to acknowledge the fact that the Avesta is the Source from which Judaism, Christianity and consequently theology copied abundantly.

HEALTH-GERMS

By George Starr White, M. D.

CABBAGE AND SAUERKRAUT

For a real muscle-builder, no food can compare with raw cabbage. If it were generally realized what raw cabage will do for Helth, thousands of farms would be put into the raising of cabbage—one of the greatest of all foods!

Dr. Geo. Starr White

As a dressing for shredded raw cabbage, lemon juice and olive oil, or Sesame-Seed Oil, in equal parts, is ideal.

Fermented cabbage, known as Sauerkraut, is a wonderful food. The only objection to Sauerkraut is the salt that is put on the cabbage as it is packed down to ferment. However, after making many practical tests, I have found that the lactic-acid fermentation takes away most of the objectional qualities of the salt. The lactic-acid in the Sauerkraut has a good effect on the bowels. It changes the bacteria in a manner that no other acid does.

For auto-intoxication and all forms of catar of the intestins, lactic acid is helpful. The lactic acid made from milk is not nearly so potent as that from the fermented cabbage.

Sauerkraut Lactic Acid can be used as a remedy for all forms of bowel fermentation in the young as well as the aged. A small amount of the acid Sauerkraut juice can be diluted with water, and a little honey added if desired, to make an excellent drink.

It is best not to cook Sauerkraut but on the contrary simply warm it. Sauerkraut is one food that can be canned and still be helthful.

NO SMOKING

Does any good derived from tobacco outweight the harm it does?

The estimated annual consumption of tobacco in the United States is approximately 100 cigarettes, 62 cigars, three and one-half pounds of chewing and smoking tobacco and one-half pound of snuff for every person in the nation. That's a heap of tobacco, and a heap of money too—a total of $3,000,000,000 in round figures.

Each year cigarette manufacturers spend more than $30,000,000 on advertising to promote the smoking habit. And in one lone year recently Americans bought 162,500,000,000 cigarettes for which they paid over a billion dollars. The manufacturers cleared a nice profit of 875,000,000. No wonder they want people to smoke!

What's wrong with the habit? Smoking must be all right, someone says, because nearly all doctors smoke, and they ought to know. They do know, but doctors are human too, as their death rate from diseases often caused by the use of tobacco would seem to indicate. Like other smokers, they find it hard to break away once the habit is formed. But many at the top of the profession do refrain from smoking. Dr. William Mayo of the famous Mayo Clinic didn't smoke; no good surgeon, he said, can afford to—and other eminent medical men have echoed his words.

It stands to reason that smoking must have some harmful effect on some persons' health somewhere. To be sure, smokers don't all drop dead around the cigar lighters in tobacco stores. But doctors do not study "tobacco heart" just for the fun of it. Athletes don't cut out smoking without reason.

Take a look at tobacco. Its active principle is nicotine, one of the deadliest poisons known to science—the poison which gardeners use to kill insects and pests on plants. Sixty milligrams of it injected into a man's blood would cause his death. Of the 18 milligrams of nicotine in a cigarette only about two actually enter the blood stream through the lungs in smoking. And the body maintains a defense mechanism against those two milligrams, whereby the liver destroys and the eliminative organs throw off some of the poison. But while the poison is being attacked, it also injures the liver and the other organs acting upon it. Nicotine works slowly—but it works.

The smoker may decide that he will watch for evidence that tobacco is hurting him and, if evidence appears give up smoking. But probably he never will find any such evidence until irreparable injury already has been done.

In Chicago last year one person out of every four who died was a victim of heart disease. During a recent prize-fight broadcast more than a dozen persons dropped dead from listening in. Heart attacks. And smoking affects the heart. In the course of 24 hours a smoker's heart may have to thump thousands of extra times. That is why athletes seldom smoke. The late Knute Rockne and a host of other leaders in the athletic world—Connie Mack, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Joe Louis—condemn the cigarette habit. Professor Pack of the University of Utah has shown that only half as many smokers as nonsmokers are successful in tryouts for football squads; also that smokers have an inferiority of lung capacity amounting to practically ten per cent.

Smoking affects stomach and nutrition. Dependable statistics show that smokers suffer more than nonsmokers do from many stomach disorders, ranging all the way from simple heartburn to ulcers. And often putting an end to smoking has been enough to effect a cure.

Smoking increases fatigue and exhaustion. Two years ago, in Rochester, N. Y., Dr. Harry L. Segal was treating six patients who had been dragging along for five years, feeling continually exhausted. The doctor ordered all of them to stop smoking.

After three weeks, each patient felt greatly improved. The chronic fatigue was gone. One man had gained ten pounds, each of the others from four to five pounds.

Smoking may even shorten a person's life. The New England Mutual Insurance Company has kept a record of tobacco users, and finds that among 18,000 policy holders the death rate of abstainers was only 59% of the expected mortality, while among tobacco users it reached 93%.—Nature's Path.

OBJECTORS HIT HARD

Conscientious objectors in New Zealand will come under the drastic rules of special tribunals whose duties are outlined in an officail statement issued in Wellington. The tribunals will see to it that for the purposes of the war the financial position of objectors is to be no better than it would be if they were serving in the armed forces.

Health Priority Over Arms Urged

ATLANTIC CITL, N. .,— The national defense drive may rot at its foundation unless health needs receive priority over arms requirements, Dr. John L. Rice, health commissioner of New York City and president-elect of the American Public Health association, said today.

Addressing 4000 members of the organization, he told them replacements for a broken water main, sewer line or heating plant must be obtained, even at the cost of slowing down the building of armaments, if typhoid, dysentery, influenza and other epidemics are to be avoided.

In observations made at Marine Studios, Marineland, Florida, it was found that several varieties of fish are strictly vegetarians.

George Washington's Vision

I have published some time ago a full account of the mysterious visitor who called upon George Washington during the struggle for independence from the British tyrant and showed him the future of America. There were three phases: The battles for Independence from British tyranny, the battles for the maintenance of the Union under Lincoln and the battles for true American independence from the international ring which produces these periodical wars. This last phase is taking place now. I am so terribly busy with producing and financing this paper and the radio program, and not having any help, so upset by the rapid change that is going on, I cannot sit down to find the complete text of "George Washington's Three Visions". Would any of you kindly hunt up that story for me and let me have it by dropping it into an envelope addressed to THE BROOM, East San Diego, Calif. and oblige.

Who Is a Nazi ?

During the period preceding the declaration of war, when I exercised my American prerogative to stand out against entry into the war, I took it meekly and as a matter of campaign tactics when my opponents called me names. But now that the die has been cast and we are in the war for life and existence, if you want to call me such names as Nazi, Fascist or Communist, be prepared to substantiate your charge with facts or take the consequences. I mean business.

Take your facts to the F. B. I., they'll take action.

If you have no facts but want to start trouble it will land you in the hoosegow.

Concerned About David

Dear de Aryan:

I have joined my faith and prayers with yours in behalf of David. I hope the boy is "bucking up" like his dad. Cheerfulness and faith are good medicines, and good anti-septics.

One reason why I have stayed with my task of teaching economics is that I can see that, once we get our economics on straight, reason and justice will get a fair chance and then medical quackery will be recognized for what it is and the bondage of medical malpractice will be broken.

Good cheer to you and yours,

L. D. BECKWITH.

Stockton, California.

HOW IS DAVID ?

Dear Mr. de Aryan:

It is with great sorrow that I am reading of your son's illness. I hope he will soon be entirely well again. I am going to say a prayer for David's recovery.

Sincerely,

EMELDA DESHAIES.

Washington, D. C.

THE RABIES RACKET UNMASKED

We have received numerous telephone calls, personal inquiries and letters of concern for David's "illness" as Miss Deshaies puts it. We are very appreciative of the sympathy given us, but David has not been ill a single second, the wound had healed normally, like any other scratch, the only time that the boy was ill at ease was when the fool veterinarian at the El Cerrito Dog Hospital scared the daylights out of David's employer, out of the owner of the dog that bit the boy, out of David's mother who called up Dr. George Starr White by long distance, because she could not get in touch with me at that instant as I was about my business all over town. David got a scare from the other fool and arrogant agent of the Humane Society who plays the dog vaccination racket in cahoots with the veterinarians and should never get any financial support from any sensible dog lover while they support the racket and make money off it, when that emissary of the dog torturers called at our house and insulted Mrs. de Aryan.

But aside from this scare hysteria, David had suffered at no time any ill consequences from the bite of the poor dog who should have received intelligent care instead of being left to die, another dog victim to the ignorance of "Pasteur" voodoo medicine men.

Here is what the medics themselves say about their own racket:

From a standard work on "CLINICAL LABORATORY METHODS and DIAGOSIS", written by R. B. H. Gradwohl, M. D. — " . . . Rabies is a very common disease . . . . The microorganism of this disease has not yet been discovered. In 1903, Negri described characteristic bodies, small round corpuscles which were found in ganglion cells of the sick animals. He believed these were protozoa and thought that he had found the cause of the disease. It has since been proved that these are not protozoa and therefore are not the causative factors of the disease . . . It is to be emphasized that failure to find Negri bodies is not prooof of the nonexistence of rabies."

The above quotation says plainly that Negri Bodies, which the Municipal Laboratory report, according to Dr. Lesem's letter to us, states were found in the dog's cerebrum that bit David, has nothing to do with rabies either way, namely: they don't cause rabies and their presence does not prove rabies, because rabies might exist when no Negri bodies are found, according to the above quotation of their standard text book.

Thus Negri bodies have as much connection with rabies as with the man in the moon.

But let's see what other eminent pathologists, recognized by the medics themselves, have to say on the subject:

From a standard work on "PATHOLOGY for STUDENTS and PRACTITIONERS" by Edward Kaufman, translated from the original German edition: — — " . . . concerning the specific Negri bodies . . . Lentz calls them products of the ganglion cell reaction to dengenrative processes caused by the influence of the organism on these cells; Piron holds that Lentz's "passage bodies" are accidental products of cell destruction which may be found in various other infections. Sanfelice is of the opinion that Negri's bodies, which he found in some animals during their winter hibernation (hedge-hogs and others), are nothing other than changed granule bodies which have entered the cytoplasm of cells; . . . "

democracy

By Charles H. Ingersoll
(Of Dollar Watch Fame)

Recently, almost in the 'Deadly Parallel Column', appeared the President's demand that we crush Hitler, and the statement from the 'Ordnance Administration' having 6,000 army officers as subscribers, and by an Ordnance Colonel, that the Bomber will absolutely protect us from invasion under all circumstances.

To me this is the last word. It takes the only remaining prop from under war propaganda, and leaves very little to the defense extravaganza. This follows lines of common horse sense which 'for the duration' is presumed to be incommunicado. Without considering a super type of bomber costing a million to build, mass production of flivver planes (or call them skeeters) would make inconceivable any form of invasion from 3,000 miles distant.

The Big Government—the federal—should do only the big government things. And these social functions should taper down through the state and county to the local or municipal governments where petty affairs should concentrate.

But in a big Democratic (big D) bureaucracy like ours, the lines dividing authority are nothing but confusion; and so there is no limitation on the interference of over-reaching control, even of citizens' private lives.

'States Rights' was once the symbol of independence—ultimately of the individual. But in this decade of New Dealism, state and individual rights have become a mere memory, in the piling higher of federal prerogatives at the expense of billions of consumer-tax money freely loaned and given to eager politicians and mass-charity enterprises, in a mass vote getting movement.

'A Tale of Two Cities' might be a comparison of Pittsburgh and Indianapolis, respectively about 700,000 and 400,000 population. Pittsburgh gives one the impression of too many people and too many automobiles for its size; also too much rush, crush and noise. The capital of the Hoosiers is just the reverse there is plenty of room. Cars and people move quietly, and normalcy prevails.

Text of German War Decision

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 11—The following is the text of the German note handed today in Berlin to the United States charge d'affaires by Foreign Minister Ribbentrop, and released here by the state department:

"The government of the United States, having violated in the most flagrant manner and in ever-increasing measure all rules of neutrality, in favor of the adversaries of Germany, and having continually been guilty of the most severe provocations toward Germany ever since the outbreak of the European war provoked by the British declaration of war against Germany on Sept. 3, 1939, has finally resorted to open military acts of aggression.

'Attacks Systematic'

"On Sept. 11, 1941, the president of the United States publicly declared that he had ordered the American navy and air force to shoot on sight at any German war vessel. In his speech of Oct. 27, 1941, he once more expressly affirmed this order was in force. Acting under this order, vessels of the American navy since early September, 1941, have systematically attacked German naval forces. Thus, American destroyers, as for instance the Greer, the Kearney and the Reuben James, have opened fire on German submarines according to the plan. The secretary of the American navy, Mr. Knox, himself confirmed that American destroyers attacked German submarines.

Seized as Enemy Ships

"Furthermore, the naval forces of the United States, under orders of their government and contrary to international law, have treated and seized German merchant vessels on the high seas as enemy ships.

"The German government therefore establishes the following facts:

"Although Germany on her part has strictly adhered to the rules of international law in her relations with the United States during every period of the present war, the government of the United States, from initial violations of neutrality, has finally proceeded to open acts of war against Germany.

All Blamed to U. S.

"The government of the United States has thereby virtually created a state of war.

"The German government, consequently, discontinues diplomatic relations with the United States of America and declares that under those circumstances brought about by President Roosevelt, Germany, too, as from today, considers herself as being in a state of war with the United States of America.

"Accept, Mr. Charge d'Affaires the expression of my high consideration. (Signed) RIBBENTROP.

"Dec. 11, 1941."

No Need Being Brutal

Pres. Franklin Delano Roosevelt,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:

Conforming to your order to the Justice Department to immediately arrest every "alien enemy" within the borders of the U. S. A., I notice that some people are being detained, their business ruined, families broken up, when the individuals concerned are at heart as good Americans as any and their misfortune lies in the fact that they have not lived here long enough to be able to comply with the statutory requirements for naturalization.

You have been telling us that the aim of your administration is humanitarianism as distinct from brutalitarianism. Now is your opportunity to set an example, by segregating the dangerous aliens from those who as I stated are as good Americans as any.

Of course, in the slow process of legal red tape, some of these unfortunate people will be released to responsible supervisors. But I am certain that if you stressed the urgency of being quick about it, since the history and antecedents of most aliens are well known to the FBI, such release in custody of responsible supervisors could be materially speeded up, as soon as you give the definite order for such procedure.

Few people realize that the purpose of detention can be fully achieved, by elimination of the dangerous aliens and liberation of the "American" aliens at heart, who are aliens in technical terms only, but came here because they are of our own spirit and mind. The law can achieve its ends without copying brutalitarian methods when the true selections would lift the morale and allay the fears that the declaration of war leads to greater and more brutal arbitrariness in the administration of law.

Hoping that this plea does not fall upon deaf ears,

I am yours truly,

C. LEON de ARYAN.
